

It is obviously suggested that there is a high possibility of potential racial bias in Vermont, but they are somehow inconsistent across the violation types to provide any definite answer. Let us digger deeply to see what else we can find.

The above figures show the search rate and hit rate of minority drivers compared with white drivers in each county. If all of the color dots are on the diagonal centered line, it would implicate the white drivers and non-white drivers are searched at the same rate and same standard evidence.
